

SEATTLE POLICE DEPARTMENT 2009 ANNUAL REPORT

OFFICER TIMOTHY Q. BRENTON
February 9, 1970 - October 31, 2009

In memory of Officer Timothy Q. Brenton

On the night of October 31, 2009, Field Training Officer Tim Brenton was in his stopped patrol car, discussing a recently completed traffic stop with his student Officer Britt Sweeney. Without warning, an unknown gunman pulled up next to them, and began shooting into the car. Officer Sweeney was grazed but was able to return fire to the assailant's car and radio for help. Officer Brenton was killed instantly.

In the days that followed, there was grief, anger and fear amidst an ongoing manhunt for the suspect. But there was one small moment of peace: at Officer Brenton's public memorial service on November 6, 2009. It was a time to finally pay tribute to and remember the man who was killed for no other reason than his uniform. Precisely as the memorial was ending, news broke that the suspect in the shooting had been found and arrested by SPD investigators.

Tim Brenton was known for his quick wit, positivity and intelligence. His wife describes him in two words: humble integrity. He loved being a police officer and loved sharing his knowledge with others through Field Training. Brenton came from a family dedicated to public service; his father and uncle are both retired Seattle Police Officers and his brother in law is a Seattle Fire Fighter. Officer Brenton first served in the US Army as a veteran of the first Gulf War, followed by service in the Hoquiam and La Connor Police Departments. In 2000, he fulfilled his lifelong dream of following in his father's footsteps by joining the Seattle Police Department. He is survived by his wife, an 11-year-old daughter and 8-year-old son.

A community pays respects

The horrific murder of Officer Tim Brenton opened the eyes of the public to the very real dangers officers face, while also showing police officers just how much they really are appreciated by the community they serve.

From the ever-growing memorial of flowers and thoughts that appeared instantly at the site of the shooting, to the candlelight vigils, letters and visits to the precincts to thank officers, shaking the hands of police officers while just in line to get a coffee, to thousands of messages of support on Facebook for Officer Britt Sweeney, this was a death that shook the city and it took a community effort to begin to heal.

In a touching tribute, the day of Brenton's memorial service, the Space Needle raised a special flag. The flag displayed Brenton's badge number 6699 and the SPD shield and it flew above the entire downtown skyline.

Chief's Message

Message from Chief John Diaz

When I was asked to serve as Interim Chief after the departure of Gil Kerlikowske, I was honored. In the thirty years I have worked for this department, I have served in numerous roles and have witnessed the Department go through many challenging times. 2009 proved to be one of the most challenging years yet.

In June, the Greenwood neighborhood endured a string of arsons, caused by a serial arsonist. In July, the South Park community was shaken by the horrific murder of Teresa Butz and the assault on her partner. In both of these cases, the community and police department worked together in a true partnership to find and arrest the suspects.

Then in October, the Department was first rocked by an arson/bomb attack on one of our storage facilities. While we were still investigating this incident, a week later on Halloween night, an ambush attack took the life of Officer Timothy Brenton and injured his partner Student Officer Britt Sweeney. In the aftermath of this horrific crime, the Department had to do many things simultaneously and immediately: investigate the murder and look for the suspect, plan a public memorial service, and continue to provide the same consistent level of police services to our city. All the while, everyone worked with heavy hearts and a heightened sense of security since the gunman was still on the loose. By the conclusion of the memorial service, our Homicide Detectives had found the suspect - who was tied to the earlier arson as well - and taken him into custody. The elapsed time from the night of the murder to the arrest was only six days.

2009 also proved to be one the deadliest years, in modern times at least, for regional law enforcement. In the last two months of the year, there were six law enforcement officers killed in Western Washington. In a case that made national news, just a month after we lost Officer Brenton, the City of Lakewood lost four police officers when a gunman targeted and killed them. A two-day inter-agency manhunt for the suspect ended when SPD Officer Benjamin Kelly came across a stolen car and ended up confronting this dangerous suspect alone and taking him down.

Watching how steadfastly the Department worked together during an almost surreal time of pain and fear, was truly inspiring to me. Through it all, I was also deeply moved by the outpouring of support we received from the community. I don't know if I had ever been more proud of the men and women of this Department or more appreciative of the community members we serve.

I have long believed that there is no nobler profession than that of providing safety and security to the community, and I feel there is no finer law enforcement organization than the Seattle Police Department. 2009 was in many ways a challenging year, but it ultimately served to reinforce the tremendous pride I have in the work that the Seattle Police employees do every day.

MURDER of a SEATTLE POLICE OFFICER

On October 22, an arson fire and explosion was set off at a Seattle Police Department maintenance garage, destroying several patrol vehicles and a Mobile Command rig.

Nine days later, on October 31, East Precinct Field Training Officer Tim Brenton had pulled over to the side of a road in the Leschi Neighborhood to go over a just-completed traffic stop with his student Officer Britt Sweeney. Without any warning, a car pulled to the side of their patrol vehicle and opened fire. Officer Brenton was killed instantly. Student Officer Sweeney was grazed, but was able to return fire at the vehicle and radio for help.

The night of the shooting, other patrol cars rushing to the scene had captured photos of a suspicious vehicle leaving the scene from a variety of angles. The Department asked for the public's help in identifying the vehicle. Clues left at the scene pointed to the same suspect as in the earlier arson.

Six days later, a citizen tip on the type of car being sought led investigators to the Tukwila apartment complex of Christopher Monfort. He had weapons and bomb-making materials in his home, and his car matched the description of that seen the night of the shooting. He was taken into custody exactly as Brenton's memorial service ended.

Officers at the East Precinct take a moment to watch the memorial procession for the four Lakewood Officers on December 8, 2009. Since 2006, the East Precinct has been particularly hard hit by Officer fatalities. The first was Officer Joselito Barber, who was killed while on duty by a DUI driver. Later that same year, Officer Beth Nowak was killed on her way to work by an intoxicated driver in a stolen vehicle. Just a month before the Lakewood Murders, the precinct was shaken again by the violent murder of East Precinct Officer Tim Brenton and the attempted murder of Officer Britt Sweeney.

MURDER of FOUR LAKEWOOD OFFICERS

On November 29, 2009, four Lakewood Police Department Officers were murdered when they were gunned down at a Parkland, WA coffee shop. The gunman, Maurice Clemmons, fled the scene - sparking a two-day manhunt that spanned several cities in the Puget Sound region. Seattle Police - already on high alert since the killing of Officer Brenton less than a month before - had checked several Seattle-based locations where it was believed the suspect might try to stay with family, but he was not located.

At 2:30 AM on December 1st, while on routine patrol in the South Precinct, SPD Officer Benjamin Kelly came across a car at the side of the road. The hood was up, the engine was still running and it met the description of a stolen vehicle. After checking the car and finding it unoccupied, Kelly was back on his patrol car computer when he noticed a man matching Clemmons' description approaching from the rear of his car. Officer Kelly demanded he show his hands, but the man began to pull something from his waistband. Officer Kelley shot at Clemmons multiple times and he died at the scene. The suspect was found to be carrying a gun he had taken from one of the Lakewood Officers.

Deputy Chief Nick Metz takes questions from residents of South Park at a community meeting in the wake of the murder of Teresa Butz. In what was believed to be a random attack, a stranger with a history of mental illness broke into the home of Teresa Butz and her partner, sexually and physically assaulting both women. Butz fought back, allowing her partner to escape, but eventually succumbed to her stab wounds. The horrific murder brought about the "Fight the Fear Campaign" created in Butz's memory. The Seattle Police Foundation partnered with Brandi Carlile's Looking Out Foundation, the Indigo Girls and the Community Outreach Unit to create the community outreach for free self-defense and violence prevention training for women in underserved populations.

GREENWOOD ARSONS

After enduring a string of 17 arsons in two months, which caused millions of dollars in damage to local businesses, and injured one person, the Seattle Police Department, community members and the Seattle Field Office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms worked together to identify and arrest the suspect. The suspect has been linked to at least 11 of the 17 fires in this investigation.

COLD CASE INVESTIGATIONS

- Victim Margaret Bednar – investigators received a complete confession from suspect Bernard Pierce, who was already serving a life sentence for another murder; the confession resulted in the parole board rescinding Pierce's request for release.

- Victim Nora Gracy – detectives arrested Spencer Hart for the 1984 murder of Gracy; case is set for trial February 2010.

PATTERN ROBBERY CASES

- Greenlake Robberies – investigated 12 robberies and arrested six suspects.
- Suspect Dodd Robbery – arrested for home invasion robberies and sexual assault. Dodd was sentenced to 15+ years.
- Suspect Weems and McNear – known violent gang members arrested for home robbery of an elderly male at gunpoint.
- Browns Cooperstown Store – arrested two armed robbery suspects who forced an elderly store owner on the floor at gunpoint and stole over $40,000 worth of sports memorabilia.

Spotlight on: Traffic Safety

The traffic enforcement section of the Seattle Police Department takes a multi-pronged approach to traffic safety. From regular enforcement, to partnering with neighborhoods to address specific traffic concerns, to targeted seasonal emphasis efforts such as school zone enforcement and holiday DUI patrols, the SPD Traffic Unit aims to be flexible and responsive to the needs of the city.

ACHIEVEMENTS

- The Aurora Avenue Traffic Safety Corridor Project, is aimed at improving pedestrian and vehicular safety around Aurora Avenue. In conjunction with WA State Traffic Safety Commission, WA State Patrol, Seattle Department of Transportation and members of the Aurora Avenue neighborhood, the program has generated 1,485 citations and reduced pedestrian accidents and fatalities throughout the corridor.
- SPD Traffic Unit conducted sting operations, citing drivers for failure to yield to pedestrians in crosswalks.
- SPD Traffic Unit continued the Aggressive Driving Response Team, generating over 14,360 citations.
- To increase safety around school zones, SPD Traffic enforcement wrote over 3,700 citations in various school zones for violations, implemented the School Zone Speed Van campaign, generating 731 citations, and trained numerous school zone crossing guards.
- Continued DUI enforcement year-round with targeted holiday emphasis.
- SPD expanded the Red Light Camera project to include 29 intersections, generating 51,512 citations.

On August 7, 2009 Chief John Diaz announced a pilot project called the Drug Market Initiative - a strategy designed to reduce or eliminate overt street-level drug dealing in Seattle's residential neighborhoods. The strategy relies on direct police response to neighborhood complaints, and building a case against active dealers. These dealers are then invited to a "Community Call-In" where they are given a stark choice: they can either immediately cease their criminal behavior and take advantage of community-based social services to turn their lives around, or face prosecution to the fullest extent of the law. This program was a partnership effort with the Seattle Neighborhood Group, King County Prosecutor's Office, Seattle City Attorney's Office, social service providers and the community. Early results showed a reduction in drug-related calls for service and officer on-view incidents.

CRISIS INTERVENTION TEAM

Worked with Western and Eastern State Hospitals, Sound Mental Health, King County Mental Health Plan, and local prosecutors to establish and implement a protocol to take extremely dangerous mentally ill offenders off the streets until their mental health becomes stable enough to return safely to society.

FIGHTING HUMAN TRAFFICKING

- Identified a total of 45 victims of human trafficking and 46 potential suspects, and assisted in the federal prosecution of two suspects and one charged in Washington State.
- Obtained first conviction in the state under Washington State Trafficking law.

INTERNET CRIMES AGAINST CHILDREN TASK FORCE - ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Received 356 cyber tips; investigated 84.
- Made 14 arrests; six from undercover operations.
- Served/wrote 165 search warrants.
- Made 81 Internet safety presentations to 18,255 people.
- Added 10 law enforcement agencies in Washington State and British Columbia to the now 82-member Seattle NW Regional ICAC Task Force.

A Seattle Police Officer in uniform is walking on a sidewalk. He is wearing a black short-sleeved shirt with patches, black pants, and sunglasses. He has a duty belt with a holster and other equipment. The background shows a light blue building and some greenery.

Spotlight on: Gangs & Youth Violence

The Seattle Police Department was instrumental in creating the Regional Gang Work Group which meets with other agencies regularly to discuss gang-related crimes and activities affecting all of King County. The group brings together representatives from the U.S. Attorney's Office, the King County Prosecutor's Office, FBI, ATF, ICE, DOC and police agencies in Seattle, Burien, Auburn, Federal Way, Des Moines, Kent, Tukwila and the Port of Seattle. Other efforts to address gangs and youth violence include:

VIOLENT GANG TASK FORCE

Led by ATF with SPD assistance, notable incidents include:

- Operation Wolverine – served search warrants in Seattle, Federal Way, Burien, Yakima, and Chicago IL, and arrested 14 suspects for identity theft.
- Operation Block Watch – conducted a seven-month drug case with DEA where most of the 12 federal defendants have pled guilty.
- The Hill in Skyway and Rainier Valley – arrested 31 people who were well-known violent gang members who were caught with guns or sold guns to ATF.

YOUTH VIOLENCE PREVENTION ACTIVITIES

- Assisted in the creation and implementation of Seattle Youth Violence Prevention Initiative.
- Assigned School Emphasis Officers to Denny, Aki Kurose, Mercer and Washington Middle Schools.
- Assisted the Urban League of Metropolitan Seattle to implement the Street Outreach Program, which provides a notification process for responding to critical youth incidents.
- Worked with King County Sheriff to reduce violent outbreaks occurring within and around the Youth Service Center and Juvenile Court, developing policies and "lock down" protocols.

*"Workload" is measured by service hours spent on calls for service and officer-initiated events.

"Officers" only includes those assigned to 9-1-1 call response as the primary duty. Not included are clerks, wagons and bike officers, footbeats and officers assigned to community police or anti-crime teams. This does not count all officers assigned to each precinct.

Office of Professional Accountability

A review of the Complaint Intake table (right) shows that though the overall number of contacts with the Office of Professional Accountability (OPA) continues to rise, the number of cases classified for investigation by the OPA Investigations Section or the named employee's Line of Command has remained fairly stable. The OPA Director and OPA Auditor review all cases at the intake stage and a determination is made as to whether the complaint should be investigated, handled by a supervisor, can be resolved without referral or is suitable for mediation. The fact that the number of cases investigated remains constant despite a rise in intake reflects OPA's successful classification efforts and focus on investigating only the most serious of allegations.

Of course, the great majority of Seattle police officers work day in and day out serving the Seattle community without ever receiving an OPA complaint. In 2009, the number of officers receiving a complaint was 5% lower than in the two previous years. For the 15% of officers who had a complaint filed against them, the majority were exonerated or otherwise found not responsible for the misconduct alleged. Approximately 12% of complaints closed in 2009 were "Sustained," meaning that the allegation of misconduct was supported by a preponderance of the evidence collected during the OPA investigation. The Sustained rate has been relatively constant the past few years. In 2009, of those complaints that were Sustained, one third involved off-duty violations of law (for example, DUI, reckless driving, or disorderly conduct).

Many instances of police action reviewed by OPA do not clearly demonstrate misconduct but the underlying facts indicate that training would be useful. The "Supervisory Intervention" finding allows for well-intentioned mistakes made in the performance of law enforcement duties to be addressed by education and counseling, rather than punishment. In 2009, 12 % of cases were closed with a Supervisory Intervention finding. Even where misconduct clearly is involved, however, traditional discipline approaches such as unpaid time off are not always the most effective in promoting behavioral change. Thus, OPA has been working with the Department to consider discipline alternatives based on adult learning models. Where appropriate, the Chief of Police is incorporating alternative discipline in Sustained cases, such as requiring that the involved officer do a research project related to the misconduct or assist with training to help avert others from engaging in similar misconduct.

2009 Disposition of Completed Investigations

The above data covers 198 completed cases closed between January 1, 2009 and December 31, 2009. Total allegations were 390.

ORGANIZATIONAL CHANGES

Finally, there have been important organizational changes in OPA beginning in 2009. First, in an effort to improve efficiencies in the OPA Investigations Section (OPA-IS), a second Lieutenant was added to the office in late 2009. This change allows for more one-on-one contact by the supervising Lieutenants with OPA-IS investigators to ensure that investigations are conducted thoroughly and expeditiously. Second, the OPA-IS Captain was assigned to oversee SPD Ethics. As the Captain continues to report to the OPA Director and is involved with review of some OPA complaints, this allows for enhanced coordination on implementation of OPA policy and training recommendations, along with OPA oversight of departmental ethical issues. The Captain also works closely with the OPA Director in publishing monthly and annual reports to ensure accountability and transparency in the oversight process and work of OPA.

Crime Statistics

2009 Crime Trends

CITYWIDE CRIME TRENDS

Overall, Major Crimes were up in Seattle in 2009 by 7% when compared with 2008. This followed a large reduction in crime in 2007 and a smaller decline in 2008 that saw the city's crime rate fall to a forty year low. Even with the increase experienced in 2009, the rate of crime in Seattle, when adjusted for population, is at a level not seen since the late 1960's. Several trends within the 2009 crime statistics are important to note.

First, the citywide Major Crime increase in 2009 did not occur in all crime categories. In two of the most serious crimes – homicide and rape – there were double-digit decreases. Vehicle theft also showed a double-digit decline, continuing a five-year trend. Burglaries posted a modest increase over the level in 2008. The three crimes most responsible for the overall increase in Major Crimes were robbery, aggravated assault and larceny/theft.

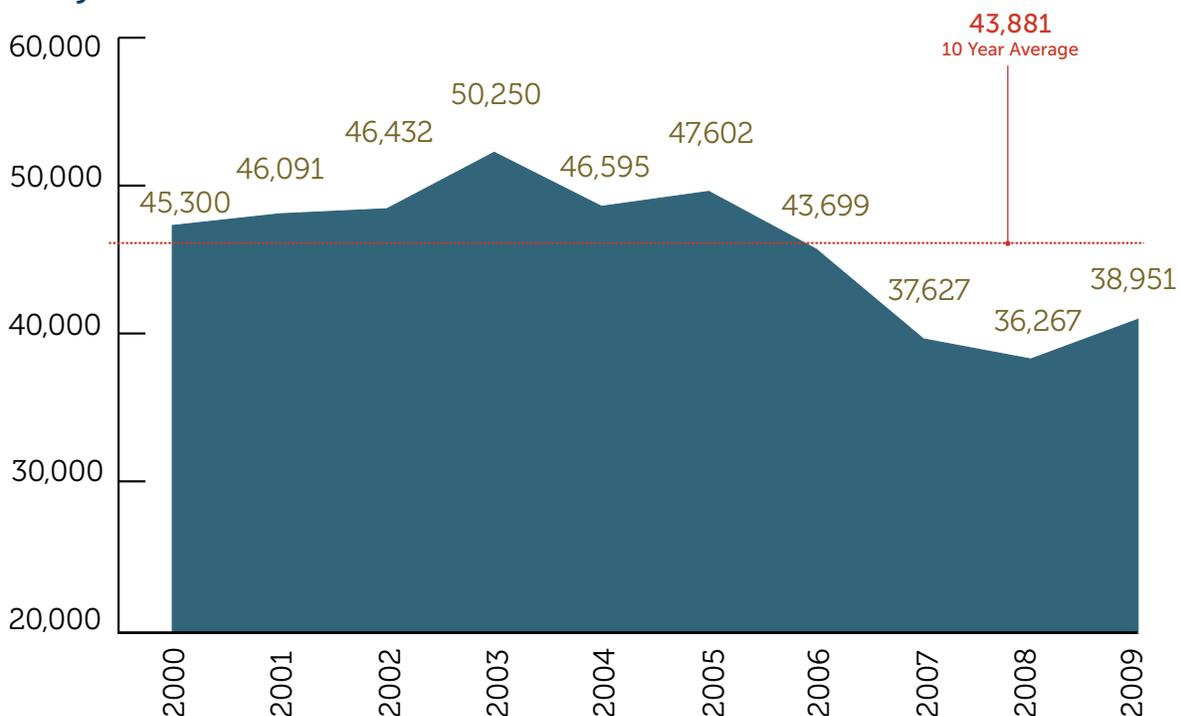

Second, crime trends varied across the city in 2009. South Precinct, which saw a Major Crime increase in 2008, showed a decline in 2009, the only precinct to do so. North and East Precincts tallied Major Crime increases comparable to the citywide level in 2009, while West and Southwest Precincts recorded Major Crime increases greater than the citywide level.

PRECINCT CRIME TRENDS

The precincts also showed different patterns in specific crimes, when compared to the citywide trends. For example, whereas the trend citywide showed an increase in robbery, East and South Precincts tallied declines in that crime. While there was a citywide increase in aggravated assaults, East Precinct saw a reduction in 2009, and West Precinct recorded almost the same number of serious assaults in 2009 as in 2008. With respect to burglary, while there was a modest increase citywide, West and South Precincts recorded burglary decreases. To address these varied trends, precinct commanders have the latitude to deploy resources for proactive patrol in crime hotspots, and for rapid response to pattern crimes. They can also call upon task forces and specialized units, such as Gangs, to supplement and support the work of Patrol units.

Officer Safety Issues

In 2009, there were seven law enforcement officers killed in Washington State. This underscores the fact that - even with all the training and safety precautions available - policing remains a dangerous job. Lewis County Sheriff's Deputy Stephen Michael Gallagher Jr. was killed on August 18 when, while responding to a call on rural Highway 12, his patrol car collided with an elk. Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Kent Mundell Jr. lost his life on December 28th, after he heroically returned fire after being shot to protect his partner and residents of the house during a domestic violence call.

Traffic accidents are a leading cause of officer injury and death, as are domestic violence calls, which are known to be unpredictable when emotions run high. Both of these events clearly illustrate the hazards officers face every day in their line of work.

The loss of our own Officer Tim Brenton and the attempted murder on Officer Britt Sweeney in October, and then the loss of four officers from the Lakewood, WA Police Department less than a month later in a mass murder, went beyond the already dangerous realities of police work. These deaths were particularly disturbing to both the law enforcement community and the public because they were targeted attacks. Both were deliberate and planned murders, by two different suspects, for two different reasons. These suspects apparently chose these particular officers only because they represented law enforcement in general, and happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time.

These acts were more than an attack on a profession, they were an attack on our society.

Officer Brenton & Lakewood PD Officer Murders

October 22 - At approximately 4:53 am police and fire personnel responded to the city Charles Street Garage maintenance facility. City employees working on site saw a suspicious male inside the yard, and before there was a chance to contact him, a police car erupted in flames. The suspect took off running. A total of three patrol cars and one RV-style mobile precinct were damaged in deliberately set fires.

October 31 - Shortly after 10:00 pm, Field Training Officer Tim Brenton and student Officer Britt Sweeney were parked in their patrol car in the 100 Block of 29th Avenue South. A vehicle described as a "light colored" sedan pulled up next to the officers and opened fire. Officer Sweeney, grazed by a bullet, was able to return fire at the vehicle and radio for help. Officer Brenton was killed instantly.

November 4 - Stills of the suspected vehicle had been captured from the dashboard cameras in patrol vehicles responding the night of the murder. These photos were released for public tips and the car was described as being a Datsun 210.

November 6 - In the morning, Officer Timothy Brenton's memorial service was held at the Key Arena in Seattle Center and was attended by thousands from the law enforcement and Seattle community.

In the afternoon, Seattle Police Homicide detectives followed up on a tip about a Datsun 210 matching the description of the suspect vehicle used in the killing. Detectives responded to an apartment complex in Tukwila and were investigating in the parking lot. An adult male emerged and pointed a gun at them. Detectives fired at the suspect in self defense. The suspect was taken into custody and transported to Harborview Medical Center. The car recovered from the parking lot belonging to the suspect matched the description of the car being sought. The suspect's apartment revealed an arsenal of firearms and bomb making materials that linked him to the earlier Charles Street Garage fire. At the time of publication, this case was currently in trial.

November 29 - In an ambush attack, a suspect entered a coffee shop in Lakewood WA at around 8:00 am and opened fire on Officers Ronald Owens II, Tina Griswold, Greg Richards and Sgt. Mark Renninger. They all died at the scene. The suspect was able to get away and it is believed the suspect was able to take possession of one of the officers guns.

By the afternoon, a person of interest was identified as Maurice Clemmons, who had a long criminal record and a history of mental health issues. He had been released from custody only six days before by posting bail, and was facing seven additional felony charges, including one for child-rape. As part of many tips and sightings that regional agencies were following up on, Seattle Police SWAT deployed to a residence on East Superior Street where it is believed that the suspect might be staying with family members, but the residence was empty. Clemmons remained at large.

December 1 - During a two-day inter-agency manhunt for the Lakewood shooter, South Precinct Officer Benjamin Kelly was on patrol. At approximately 2:43 am he came across a suspicious, unoccupied vehicle on the 4400 block of South Kenyon Street. The vehicle was listed as stolen. Officer Kelly, while on his in-car computer, looked up and saw a man approaching him from the rear of his vehicle. He recognized the man as Maurice Clemmons. The man refused to comply with Officer Kelly's commands and was reaching into his waist area. Officer Kelly fired on him several times. The man died at the scene, was positively identified as Clemmons, and was found to be carrying a gun. This weapon was later ID'd as belonging to one of the slain Lakewood Police Officers.

2009 ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Precinct Officers worked in collaboration with Gang Unit and SWAT with a focus on reducing violent gang activity in the Precinct. Proactive work resulted in significant narcotics arrests, gun recoveries and violent crime intervention.
- Worked collaboratively with representatives of the LGBTQ community for continuing support of a "no-tolerance" policy on hate-crimes. When written threats were sent to a number of gay night clubs, staff worked directly with the clubs, their staff and patrons to increase the lines of communication and greater safety awareness.
- Provided assistance to the many higher education institutions in the precinct to reduce threats and issues on campus through training and increased patrols.
